LAND ADVENTURES BUCKET LIST

- 90. Go Hiking in the Rainforest: There are rainforests with extraordinary flora and fauna all over the world. You can go hiking in the rainforests of Panama, Costa Rica, Maui, Honolulu, Borneo, and so on.
- 91. Go Fire Walking. Walk barefoot over a bed of hot embers or stones. This is a popular activity in motivational seminars.
- 92. Ride a Mechanical Bull. Mechanical bulls were originally intended for rodeo competitors in training, but now you can readily find them in bars and restaurants.

Ecuadorian Rainforest is by Julia Rubinic

- 93. Race a Sports Car. This can include stock car racing--which is primarily raced on oval tracks--, drag racing--where the objective is to complete a given straight-line distance--, offroad racing, and so on. Or, you might prefer to ride as a passenger.
- 94. Participate in the Gumball 3000. The Gumball3000 is an annual British 3,000-mile international road rally which takes place on public roads, with a different route around the world each year.
- 95. Participate in The Rickshaw Run. Take part in a 5000km journey across India's gnarliest roads in a rickshaw.
- 96. Try Indoor Climbing. Indoor climbing walls are artificially-constructed walls attached with holds that mimic actual mountain walls.
- 97. Go Rock Climbing. Rock climbing has been described as mountaineering, combined with strength training, yoga, and summit fever. It requires balance, strength, and flexibility.
- 98. Go Bouldering. Bouldering is an offshoot of traditional rock climbing; it's concentrated on climbing challenges under 10 feet in height.
- 99. Rappel into a Sinkhole. A sinkhole is where the ground has caved into an underlying cave, forming a huge hole in the ground. Rappelling into a sinkhole involves hiking to the edge of the sinkhole until you get to the rappelling point. You then use a system of rappelling ropes to descend to the basin below.

Indoor Climbing is courtesy of alainlm.